The Hoxton Effect
reassessing culture-led urban regeneration

Hoxton Hall
130 Hoxton Street, N1 6SH

Tuesday 28 June 2011

3:00-3:20 Tea and coffee
3:20 Welcome and Introduction
3:30-4:30 Hoxton since the 1990s
Chair: Andrew Harris (UCL Urban Lab)

Richard Simmons (former head of CABE and Dalston City Challenge)
Alicia Miller (SPACE)
James Goff (Stirling Ackroyd)
Tom Hutton (University of British Columbia)

4.45-5:45 Hoxton present and future
Chair: Andy Pratt (Centre for Culture, Media and Creative industries Research, Kings College London)

Ben Payne (Ministry of Stories)
Ingrid Swenson (PEER)
Graeme Evans (Cities Institute, London Metropolitan University)
Micheal Pyner (Shoreditch Trust)

5:45-7:00 Drinks, food and networking

The event is part of a research network run by the UCL Urban Lab entitled ‘Creative city limits: urban cultural economy in a new era of austerity’ which offers a forum for reassessing the place of creativity in urban economic growth. Please visit www.creativecitylimits.org